Think360 Arts, the state's leading provider of arts education programs and services, is seeking artists and ensembles statewide to apply for the Think360 Artist Directory. Selected artists will be added to the 2008 Program Catalog and will be eligible to conduct educational performances, workshops or residencies for Think360 in schools and organizations throughout Colorado. Artists of all disciplines, including visual, performing, literary, media, folk arts and architecture are encouraged to apply.

The Think360 Directory lists professional teaching artists in Colorado who provide interactive arts experiences for PreK-12 students. Think360 staff work closely with artists and educators to develop customized programs that enhance curriculum and meet educational goals. Currently, more than 125 artists on the roster are available for direct services to schools, libraries and community centers.

Think360 is conducting the statewide artist search in partnership with the Colorado Council on the Arts. All directory artists are required to undergo background checks and additional training to ensure the quality of programs and suitability of working with youth.

Applications for performance artists and ensembles are due Friday, Oct. 5 and teaching artist applications are due Friday, Oct. 19.
