

About Noah Knisely

Noah Knisely, President of Platte Valley Hospital, is an experienced healthcare executive with many years of healthcare leadership experience. He's also been highly successful in improving overall engagement with providers, staff and community stakeholders. His leadership has consistently driven a strong organizational culture, strategic growth, and a steadfast commitment to safe, high-quality patient care.

Before joining Platte Valley, Noah was the regional vice president over five community hospitals as part of a healthcare system based in New Mexico. Prior to his time in New Mexico, he led hospital operations, strategy, business development, and provider services in Nebraska and Iowa.

He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Nebraska–Lincoln and later earned his MBA in Healthcare Administration from Baylor University.

Outside of work, Noah has a wonderful family, including his wife and two kids. When not working, Noah loves spending time with his family, trying to perfect his golf game, cooking, coaching youth sports, staying active, and watching his favorite sports.
